POETRY.

LINCOLN.

BY GEO. H. BAKER.

Nor in your prayers forget the martyred Chief,

Fallen for the gospel of your own belief,

Who, ere he mounted to the people's throne, Asked for your prayers, and joined in them his own.

I knew the man. I see him as he stands With gifts of mercy in his outstretched hand;

A kindly light within his gentle eye, Sad as the toil in which his heart grew wise;

His lips half parted with the constant smile That kindled truth, but foiled the deepest guile;

His bent forward, and his willing ear Divinely patient right and wrong to hear;

Great in his goodness, humble in his state, Firm in his purpose, yet not passionate,

He led his people with a tender hand, And won by love a sway beyond command.

Summoned by fate to mitigate a time Frenzied with rage, unscrupulous with crime,

He bore his mission with so meek a heart That heaven itself took up his people's part;

And when he faltered, helped him ere he fell Eeking his efforts out by miracle.

No king this man, by grace of God's intent; No, something better, freemen—President!

A nature model on a higher plan, Lord of himself, an inborn gentleman.

A PENIAN CHANT.

Mr. Stocker presented the following lyric to the air of "Billy O'Rourke."

En passant, we may remark that Billy was the son of Paddy, a celebrated individual who used to attend Donnybrook Fair.

There's a little spot across the sea,

'Tis the place where I was born, sir,

There many a happy day I've spent, When I was but a boy, sir.

But since I landed on these shores, My heart for freedom's beating,

For years have passed since I did leave My father and mother weeping.

So join the Penians O, Buckle on your armor,

To old Ireland we will go.

In this glorious land of Freedom We can live and be contented,

For "Uncle Sam" is sure our friend, He's a always right defended;

But we love the spot where we were born, And the day is fast coming

When we shall land upon old Erin's shore, To set all the Bulls a running.

Every country has its flag, Triumphantly waving;

And soon old Ireland will have its green On Tara's Hall unshaken.

They will do their best to keep us out, But Irishmen are able,

And if we can't get there no other way, We'll travel along the cable.

The Grateful Preacher.

BY JOHN G. BAKE.

A traveling preacher, "once upon a time," Addressed a congregation rather slim

In numbers—yet his subject was sublime, 'Twas "Charity" sonorous was the hymn,

Fervent the prayer; and tho' the house was small,

He pounded lustily the Sacred Word, And preached an hour as long as could be!

As one who meant the gospel should be heard.

And now, behold, the preacher's hat is sent Among the pews for customary pence,

But soon returned, as empty as it went—"Thank God," he cries, "with such an audience,

Although my preaching has been quite in vain."

Thank God—I've got my beaver back again!

Railroad Poetry.

Mr. Rice, Superintendent of the M. C. R. R., must be occasionally fond of clothing a joke in rhyme, if the following, as told by the Hillsdale Standard is true.

It states that a "dead-head" on the Central road, sent his expired pass to Superintendent Rice with the following on its back:

Bless my stars, No more on the cars

As a dead-head I'll ride on a rail, Unless Mr. Rice

Should take my advice And send me a pass by the mail.

To which Mr. Rice replied—

The Conductor will pass This bundle of gas

From July to the middle of Lent; Like any dead head,

Without paying a "red," Let him ride to his heart's content.

SAYS JUDGE MARVIN to the people of Florida: "We are about to enter upon a new career. Between the two races a good understanding must be created and continued. Some persons disappointed and vexed, will not have any faith in the colored man. They will not think of him with pleasure, now that he has become free. They have no anxiety to see him socially and morally elevated, because they have no faith in his capabilities. Let me say in all plainness to such, try him. Give him a fair chance. Teach and encourage him. Your happiness and prosperity are now inseparably connected with the welfare of this people. Their elevation will add to the power and prosperity of the State. Their movement must be upwards, or they will become in many cases, the veriest vagabonds, and rest like an incubus upon the country. In many respects the white man is superior to the colored man, and his responsibilities are correspondingly increased. We want the colored people here, in their muscles and sinews the State has immense wealth; but that they may be made available we must treat them kindly, give them an education and make them an honorable part of the body politic."

THE INAUGURATION Of the State Soldiers' Monument Association.

This was a spirited affair. We ought to erect a stately memorial to commemorate the deeds of our bravest.

We thus partly answer the question: "How sleep the brave who sink to rest, By all their country's wishes blest."

Speeches were made by ex-Gov. Blair and others. Our fellow-citizen, Gen. Byron McCutcheon, made a patriotic and stirring address, which we gladly publish:

SPEECH OF BRIG. GEN. CUTCHERON.

Brevet Brig. Gen. Byron McCutcheon, of Ypsilanti, said:

We have assembled this evening to inaugurate with fitting ceremonies, the organization of an association which has for its object the commemoration of the deeds, the virtue and the death of those who have nobly fallen in our great struggle for national existence.

At this late hour and at the eloquent words to which you have already listened, there remains but little for me to add, except that this undertaking has my heartiest sympathies, as it must have those of every soldier who survived the war.

While the struggle was still raging we had no time to pile granite, or polish marble or to carve tablets. Too busy were we then in the stern conflict. Too busy were we in moulding cannon, tempering steel and building fortifications to turn our thoughts to monumental columns or memorial stones.

The first great question to settle was, whether we had a country; and that being rightly settled, it is now fit and seasonable that we should honor those who have fallen to perpetuate that country. In honoring them we do most honor ourselves, as it would most assuredly, dishonor us were we to neglect their memory. Michigan cannot afford, the future cannot afford, to let our heroic dead, nobly fallen in this most holy war, slumber in uncommemorated graves. From their now canonized names, consecrated by a baptism of fire and flood, a deathless lustre and a heroic splendor is reflected upon this sordid age, and this money grasping nation. Upon the wings of their great martyr-souls, they have lifted us from the foul atmosphere of traffic and of gain into the pure air of a higher and nobler chivalry than that of a Bayard or a Richard Cœur de Lion.

Before their grand heroic achievements and their noble sacrifices, the whole past of our country grows dim. Well may we rejoice that we live at such a time; that we have been permitted to have our daily walk in the midst of events so grand that they have astonished mankind, and whose renown "shall fill the world for aye," charming it onward on its golden way.

And while all the sisterhood of loyal States may be proud of their citizen soldiery, none has a juster right to be so than the old Peninsula State. Few indeed are the battle-fields of this war that have not been illustrated by the valor of Michigan troops. Few indeed are the victories that have not been baptized in their blood, and few the defeats that have not been rescued from dishonor by a heroism, that had it been possible, would have wreathed victory even from the very jaws of overwhelming disaster. Ever first upon the field, the last to retire, they bore our banner proud and high, ready to fight but never fly. Michigan brave Michigan, we'd that from all the widely scattered fields which they have consecrated with their blood, and beneath whose sods their bones now slumber, we might gather them home to the bosom of that State which sent them forth to dare the dubious chance of battle, and now treasures their memory and their renown as her richest legacy. But in the soil that they immortalized with their deeds, and from which their ardent souls took flight in the divine fury of battle, they now sleep well. At Shiloh and Corinth, at Stone River and Perryville, at Chickamauga and Knoxville, at Mission Ridge and Lookout, at Kennesaw and Atlanta, at Port Hudson and Vicksburg in the west; and at Manassas and Yorktown, Williamsburg and Fair Oaks, Malvern and South Mountain, Antietam and Fredericksburg, Chancellorsville and Gettysburg, and at the Wilderness and Spotsylvania, Petersburg and Richmond, in the east sleep the dead of Michigan, and there they will sleep until the end of time. Their record is written, their monument is built in the preserved, redeemed and regenerated Republic. We can add nothing to their glory, but by appropriating them to ourselves and commemorating their deeds and death, we may borrow somewhat of their glory. Build we then their monumental pile! Lay its foundations deep and wide. You cannot make it deeper or broader than their devotion to truth. Bind it with iron and grout it with lead, you shall not make it stronger than the fabric which they cemented with their blood. Rear it until its summits divide the clouds, you cannot lift it higher than their patriotism; lavish upon it all the wealth of architecture, and all the embellishments of art, you cannot make it too grand, or too symmetrical, to symbolize their perfected sacrifice. But after all it is not in granite piles or fluted columns or graceful capitals, that we shall best commemorate their virtue; but by emulating their love of country and devotion to the great principles for which they yielded up their lives. These monuments are well. They are alike due to them and honorable to us. But in the words of the Chief Justice of the United States, "we should erect to the memory of every man who has fallen in this war a broader, grander monument, by laying the foundations of our redeemed, regenerated Union upon the solid pedestals and immovable corner-stones of universal liberty and equality." This monument this civil structure, so replete with the elements of moral grandeur, should possess such amplitude of base, such majestic altitude of political, social and moral purity and beauty, that its towering apex, as it greets the serene skies of heaven, and its vast base, as it covers our whole land and the world, should be gilded with the eternal rays of the sun of freedom. [Prolonged applause.]

A New Organization.

Many of our readers are aware that a law passed the Legislature last winter, authorizing the formation of a Farmer's and Mechanic's Trade Association. In other localities, such an association have flourished. Though it is an undeniable fact that they have proved a failure in some instances. It is believed, however, that under the present law a failure is not in the range of one chance in a thousand. As in the case of an individual firm an institution of the kind needs to be well managed. There is to be a meeting of the stockholders to-day at Follett Hall at 2 P. M., to elect a President, Vice President, Secretary, Treasurer and nine directors. An opportunity will be given to take stock; shares are $25.00 each. No person can take more than twenty shares or less than one.

This Association is based on the principle of Democratic equality. Every stockholder is entitled to a vote. The poor man with one share is equal in the selection of officers who will specially manage the concern to owners of twenty shares.

Another rock which has stranded associations of this kind, and made the farmer and others suspicious has been avoided in the legislative act. The stockholder is liable only for the amount of stock taken. The investment we believe is a good one. The location at the depot is wise; there are, first, the buildings necessary; second, a large amount of cost for freight will be saved annually. Third, a store is needed at that point. It is safe to say a population to start on of 1,500 is eager to welcome it with open arms. It is the real necessity, a large Dry Goods Store at that point that has awakened the attention of thoughtful men over the river.

Fourth, independent of local necessities such an association is needed to recover lost trade in Ypsilanti. The day was when Ypsilanti drew trade from eighteen to twenty miles distant. Now, we do not secure our legitimate trade from contiguous towns—Saline, York, Pittsfield, Superior, &c. Ann Arbor is rapidly trenching upon us. The thought of spending $50.00 per annum in advertising would throw our business men, with one or two exceptions into an adage fit. Some of them are too penurious to advertise at all. We need an Association conducted on broad and generous principles, infused with a spirit of enterprise, one which by the cheapness of its goods,—the generous price afforded for marketable produce, the vastness of its trade shall startle our rip-vanwinkles—men who were born to do business in an antediluvian age, and either drive them from the town to give place to broad, wide awake, thorough-going, energetic business men, or send a little of the electric fluid of the nineteenth century coursing through their veins; and thus saving our city from commercial decay. Give us the capital, and whether in east or west Ypsilanti, we should not care a red, we would guarantee to do a trade that would be an eye-opener to some of these half-hearted business men. Not a family from Wayne on the east, Ann Arbor west, Monroe south, and the Oakland line north, but what should thoroughly understand that we were selling goods. If necessary, we would keep a man posting hand hills constantly, the fences should preach it, the tall trees by the roadside should proclaim it. The poster, black and even his horse's sides should talk it. No mother and daughter in all this region but that should make our arrival of fresh goods a theme of conversation. Rightly conducted with like spirit and energy, we shall the new-born Farmer's and Mechanic's Trade Association with deep interest. Come on, then, ye toilers at the plough, ye that shove the plane and wield the smith's doggy hammer, come and help yourselves, build up the trade of our city, the town, and thus enhance the value of your farms.

School Meeting.—Monks.

At the School meeting last Monday evening, C. Woodruff and D. B. Dodge were elected members of the Board without opposition. Mr. E. F. Uhl was elected in place of Judge Ninde. All these gentlemen are democrats. Personally, we have no objections to Mr. Uhl; but the principle of running out a gentleman of Mr. Ninde's standing in community, a parent who has children to educate, and feels as a citizen a deep solicitude for the welfare of the school, solely on political grounds, can be considered in no other light than an outrage upon the public conscience and the public good sense.

Granted that Mr. Joslin characterized the attempt in a harsh manner—it is no excuse. We all know Mr. J. is impulsive, and in this instance it was certainly an honest and manly impulse. Though Mr. Uhl obtained a nominal majority, no one believes that he had a real majority. A number boasted that they put in two tickets, and one of our most honored and reliable citizens says he saw one man throw in a handful, boasting that he "never voted anything but the democratic ticket." A year since boys threw ballots in by the handful. It is no way to take the vote. It gives an opportunity for fraud. There is no reason why the vote should not be taken by ballot, as in the case of our ordinary ward elections. We believe there is very near a unity in public sentiment favoring this. Remarks were freely made after the meeting, in reference to the class of voters. A hard looking set certainly, and calculated to awaken painful apprehensions in the breast of every patriot. But we would not exclude them. We say to every citizen, exercise your full and just rights. The exercise of such manly prerogatives will in time discipline and ennoble this class of men and make them ashamed to condescend to such disgraceful scenes as was witnessed last Monday night. It is the so general absence of our men of weight and character—thinking men, from our school meetings that should excite the gravest apprehensions. On the whole, we think friend Uhl, a young man, in view of the above facts, would have done himself lasting credit and a good thing for his party if he had generously and nobly resigned on the spot. An evil day hath befallen us when our School Board is run as a political machine.

Clothing made to order at Post's. Call and select your cloths, cassimeres and vestings, and have a fine suit made. Thos. Honey is the cutter, and we warrant the fit.

OUT-GENERATED.

It was whispered about that J. M., a stiff Union man was a deserter. A few patriotic gentlemen who usually vote the democratic ticket, thought they had a complete rig on John. They persuaded the Provost Marshal to come down from Jackson and arrest him. J. is inveigled into a suitable place, and the Marshal arrests him. The aforesaid gentlemen mightily tickled are standing around to see the fun. John protests; tells the Marshal that if he will give him five minutes he will secure his papers and prove his arrest a false one. The time is given, and John returns with his papers all made out signed by the proper authorities. Now is his time, and he pronounces a benediction, declaring "the copperhead meeting closed." And report says they sneaked away with a flea in their ears. We give the above parties and others notice that when they get the start of J. M., they may hope to find a weasel asleep.

4th Ward Election.

Mr. E. F. Uhl was elected Alderman last Monday, receiving 59 votes to Mr. C. N. Ganson 38. This ward is not very far from a political tie, when the voters are all out. If Mr. G. had had his horse and buggy out he would have done better. The voters felt that both were good men and did not care a fig which received the empty honor. The only way to compete with the Democracy is not only to nominate good men but men who deem it no dishonor to work for their election.

CURRENT EVENTS.

A Capt. Winder, who was associated with infamous Wirz at Andersonville Prison has been arrested. The government is giving Wirz all the counsel and witnesses he asks. —The revenue receipts continue very large—$2,500,000, and over some days. This would in a very few years pay the national debt. —Reconstruction at the South seems a failure. —The rebels threaten the extermination of the freeman at many points South. —Ketchum the forger seems to be likely to come to trial. Will he be convicted and punished as a forger on a small scale would? We shall see. —The bondholders of the defunct confederate government in England have called a meeting to protect their interest. It is evidently their design to claim payment of our government. —A cinder from a pipe did mischief at Petroleum Centre, Pa. last Saturday, a tank of oil took fire—loss, $11,000. Ye smokers look out. —The funeral service of Henry O'Clarence McCarthy Deputy Head Centre of the Fenian Brotherhood was very large and imposing—the largest demonstration ever seen in St. Louis. The orator of the day was very severe on the Archbishop for his refusal to give the benediction for the usual Catholic burial. —The Detroiters are having a serious time in reference to Sunday ordinances. The Liquor and Beer Saloons are seeking to repeal the laws. Since the ordinance passed the council, the sabbath has been a quiet day and no arrests for "drunkenness"—we trust that the lovers of the Sabbath will stand firm. —Gen. Lee has accepted the presidency of Washington College in Virginia. —Gov. Brown of Georgia has been pardoned. —The corn crop is immensely large all over the country and will more than make up for the light crop of wheat. —The New York Democratic State Convention threaten to support President Johnson. It may be Johnson has Tylerized, but we don't yet believe it.

NOBLE UTTERANCES FROM GEN. MEAGHER.

Nor should we be less liberal—less just in fact—to our brave comrades in the battle-field. By their desperate fidelity to the fortunes of the Nation in many a fierce tempest of the war—a fidelity all the more heroic that they fought in chains and with the devotion of the noblest martyrs repaid with torrents of generous blood, the prescription and wicked bondage of which, under the sanction of the Stars and Stripes they had been for generations held—by their desperate fidelity and splendid soldiery, such as at Fort Wagner and Port Hudson, gave to the boyonets an irresistible electricity, the black heroes of the Union army have not only entitled themselves to liberty but to citizenship, and the Democrat who would deny them the rights for which their wounds and glorified colors so eloquently plead, is unworthy to participate in the greatness of the Nation whose authority these enfranchised soldiers did so much to vindicate.

In speaking thus I am well aware I run counter to the prejudice of the conservative politician, the great end and aim of whose statesmanship, or whatever else their public talk and labors may be called, is to concentrate the errors of misfortune of the past, and invoke the sanctions of public law and an austere patriotism to stamp the civil disabilities and social proscription with the black with a fatal immortality. And in speaking of what I conceive should be the duties and relation of Irishmen to the United States, a reference to the political conditions, upon which the Irish have to plant themselves squarely, is unavoidable; and if I incur the disapprobation of any enlightened and patriotic gentleman in giving a frank expression to my convictions, all I can say is, that I believe the world moves, and I don't intend to stand still and be overwhelmed as a fossil in its progress. The independence I assert myself, I earnestly entreat every one of my countrymen in America to cultivate. It is full time for them to emancipate themselves from the control of the politicians who have held them in an ignoble captivity for many years, and to whose vulgar dictation they surrendered the intelligence and high spirit which should be as precious to them as their citizenship. Indeed, noble as the citizenship naturally is, it becomes a reproach when the spirit it should inspire, the manhood which should accompany it, the boldness of mind that belongs to it and should never cease to nourish, adorn, and dignify it, is compromised in political servility, and the blind discipline of party usurps the prerogatives of the independent mind.

THE ART OF PRUNING.

Grafting, budding, pruning, are all arts that must be acquired, like any other art or work of skill. A pruner must understand why he prunes, and never cut a limb without first being aware of the effect. Yet pruning is mostly done at random—a limb here and a limb there is cut away, the toplessened and that is all. The fruitfulness of the tree is not improved, and it looks as a systematic work, such as nature builds, most decidedly injured. It is idle for any man of common sense to employ an itinerant pruner. They are often ignorant of the first principles of the art, and generally do more harm than good. If you doubt it, ask the question of one when he is to cut off a limb: "What for?" If he can answer that to your satisfaction, he possibly understands his business, provided you can answer the question yourself. Never cut away a limb without first asking and answering that question—what for? If you understand the art, you may have trees of any desired form, and always of handsome shape. The right time to prune is in the growing season—the time when wounds heal the most readily. The time to begin is in the first year's growth in the nursery, not to turn up sprouts to grow wild-stalked, but to shape the tree just as nature intended the particular species to grow. If an apple tree, a short bole with a round, symmetrical top; if a pear tree, a somewhat longer bole, with a top shaped like a well formed slim haystack. As a general rule in pruning, study symmetry, it is the first law of beauty, if you cannot see it other wise, try it upon yourself, lop off a right ear, or left eye, a right hand, and so on, just as some pruners do the symmetrical beauties of a tree. In pruning all sorts of fruit trees, keep "Whan for?" constantly before your eyes.

There is a tendency to over-prune among all amateur fruit growers, and more particularly among all who are just beginning to grow shrubs and trees. There is no practice that needs reform more than this one. There is no quicker way of spoiling such trees than this injudicious over-pruning. There is not one forest-tree in ten that will bear the eternal chipping to which some are subjected. Autumn seems to be the most favorite time for this sort of vandalism. There is nothing like the let alone system, and above all, for all sorts of evergreen trees. With very assistance, nature will do all the pruning that is required. Of evergreens, do not cut away the lower limbs till you make your tree like a big broom, with the handle stuck in the ground. In all pruning of fruit or ornamental trees, or shrubs or vines, do not make a cut till you think what for, with what object, and what will be the effect. This is always necessary to prevent over-pruning.

Never prune an apple tree in the months of March, April, or May. All the borers in the world do not commit half the havoc in our orchards that the pruning-knife and saw do, to apply to the wrong season of the year.

I am an advocate for pruning young trees in summer with the thumb and finger, or a pocket-knife, so constant and regularly that they will not need the saw. If that must be applied let it be in mid summer. With me that course is the most successful.—Solon Robinson's New Book.

THUMB AND FINGER PRUNING.

This is the best of all pruning. It does not disturb nature. It is, in nearly all cases, done judiciously. It must be done when the shoots are in a soft and succulent state. It is done to regulate the growth, the form of the tree. If a branch grows too rapidly, it is likely to usurp too much sap, it must be pinched back to allow the rest of the tree to come forward. Every tree can be made symmetrical and perfect in form by a little care in pinching in, if done when the tree is young. Every one can prune in this way. It requires no particular skill—only the exercise of a little common sense. The finest standard pear trees we ever saw never had a knife or saw about them. The thumb and forefinger had only been used. The trees belonged to Wm. Sanders, of Germantown, Penn., one of the first horticulturists in the country. He has now charge of the Government Gardens in Washington City. Rub off all unnecessary buds that grow in a tree—and remove as they appear. This keeps the tree clean, and the growth in the proper channels. It is easily done.—Rural World.

HORSES.

Do not over-drive horses in hot weather. Never allow a horse to drink when warm, unless he is to be kept moving as usual. Where they are stabled during hot weather, clean the stable often, litter well, and allow each animal to have a breathing hole in the window or wall before him, if possible. Some horses gall very easily beneath the collar and harness, during hot weather, where the parts do not fit well. Wash the wounds with clean water, and apply a paste made of white lead and linseed oil. Then provide collar or harness that will not chafe. The comfort of working horses may be much promoted, while in the harness, by hanging strips of cloth to the harness so as to dangle about their fore legs. Long and narrow piece of sheep skin or old buffalo robe, or two or three raccoons' tails sewed together, will keep the flies effectually from their fore legs.
